

DJ BATTLECAT

HUMBLE BEGINNINGS

DJ Battlecat, a California Native of South Central Los Angeles, is a well-known producer, DJ, and original K-Day Mixmaster. His roster consists of multi-platinum artists such as Dr. Dre, Snoop Dogg, The Game, WC, Xzibit, Dogg Pound, E-40, Nate Dogg, Ice Cube, King T, and Tha Eastsidaz, along with a number of other artists all over the world of R&B and Rap.

DJ Battlecat's specialty was developed from playing drums as a youth. This allowed him to elevate into the music production and live instrumentation that developed his signature sound. DJ Battlecat's style is a progression from the early 90's. G-Funk sound pioneered by himself, which was characterized by fat synth bass lines and soulful melodic keys, over aggressive drum and percussion patterns.

REPUTABLE HISTORY

A sophomore album called "Bangin On Wax" helped propel his career on Billboard, which lead to producing many multi-platinum albums. This also opened the door for many other major accomplishments which have led him to his current status. DJ Battlecat is a Program Director and Number One DJ for Dr Dre's Beats One Radio station, "The Pharmacy" on Apple Music, with co-host Dr Dre, Xzibit, DJ Pooh, Wyann Vaughn, Eddie Francis, and J. Rocc. He has also had his hands in TV and Entertainment with BET's Soul Train Awards in 2014 and 2015.

With the success of this turnout, he DJ-ed and played for Usher at the BET Live Experience in 2016. DJ Battlecat's new label, Nu Shoez Entertainment/Records, is launching next year, and will continue the legacy of good music, business, and entertainment for years to come. When it comes to keeping it West Coast, you can't signature the west without naming the best from the west, the legendary DJ Battlecat.
